Government takes over Craigflower School

The provincial government has taken over the Craigflower school house historic site on Admirals Road.

Provincial secretary Ernie Hall said Friday the property has been turned over to the provincial government from the municipality of Saanich.

The building is the oldest school still standing in western Canada and has long been a museum of pioneering relics. It was built in 1855. ●