

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Jenkins Married 50 Years Sept. 11

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Jenkins of 1159 Old Esquimalt Road will be at home to well wishers Sunday, September 10, from 2 to 4 p.m. and 7 to 9 p.m. when they celebrate their 50th wedding anniversary.

Feature of their milestone is both were born in Victoria. They were among the first to be wed in St. Columba Church September 11, 1917. St. Columba, now Oak Bay United Church, was located in what is now Redfern Hall, Redfern Street.

Both have been active in sporting circles of the community. Fred was a founding member of the Esquimalt Athletic Association, along with Louis DeCosta, Pete Hill, Bill Bendall and Alf Bromley. The association built Esquimalt Athletic Hall and turned it over to the municipality. It became Jubilee Hall in 1962, the municipality's 50th birthday.

Fred played on championship lacrosse and basketball teams and was active in the Victoria West Athletic Association.

He retired as foreman pattern maker at Yarrows Ltd. in 1957 after 50 years service with B.C. Foundry & Engineering Works and Yarrows which bought the former firm in 1914. Fred started his apprenticeship in 1907.

Mrs. Jenkins is an ex-telephone operator and four-time women's "champion of champions" winner in Greater Victoria lawn bowling. The Victoria West Lawn Bowling Club member has won it in 1954, 1959, 1964 and 1965. She is a spectator this year as illness has prevented her from competing.

She worked at the telephone office with Mrs. James (Violet) Bryant, mother of Reeve Ray Bryant, who was a member of her bridal party and has been a close friend through the years.

The Jenkins have lived at 1159 Old Esquimalt for 21 years. They spent 28 years previously on Joffre Street and began married life on Grafton Street.

They have two sons, Fred at home and Alf who is coming from Montreal to help them celebrate the occasion. Alf was well-known here as a top-notch soccer player.

Will celebrate the occasion Sunday, Sept. 10

people (1a)
Jenkins

According to the Victoria Daily Colonist, the residence at 332 Catherine Street was built for C. F. Jenkins in 1889. The 1889 Bird's Eye View (see attached) shows a small cluster of houses in the 300 block Catherine and although it is difficult to determine which house it is, 332 Catherine is most likely one of these houses.

Charles Frederick Jenkins is listed in the 1889 City Directory as a carpenter working for the firm of Hall, Ross & Co. (Victoria Rice Mills) and in later directories as a car repairman for the Esquimalt & Nanaimo Railway. After his retirement in about 1933, Jenkins continued to reside at 332 Catherine Street until his death in 1936 or 1937. His widow Sarah Jenkins remained there until about 1940 and the house was then sold.

Although the applicant maintains that Jenkins designed the house himself, there is no evidence of this in Archives files.

According to the Hallmark Society, the house was known as "Cavrileen". The origin of the name is unknown.

Notes made by Jean Jenkins

Notes from granddaughter Nancy Stevens (age 90)

Nancy was always the one who was informed re family members and at her present age, remains well informed.

Nancy had never heard that the house had a name when I mentioned "Gayrileen or Cavrileen" to her. She stayed at the house when she was just a small child.

States that Grandpa Jenkins built his house on Catherine Street He was a carpenter and did carpentry work for the railway in Victoria.

First wife Emma Lydia died following the birth of Myrtle, who was born at the residence. The baby was delivered by a nurse. Myrtle was adopted by the Beddis family on Salt Spring Island. Eva was raised by the Stevenson family on Salt Spring Island. The other children spent a short while at the orphanage in Victoria.

Grandpa Jenkins was meticulous that things were straight i.e. he would get up and straighten a picture on the wall if it was a little crooked. His favourite expression when annoyed was "Oh Rats!"

He ate "black" (blood) pudding every morning for breakfast. Nancy states this is a Welsh tradition and as a child she remembers how awful it looked. He was particular that they eat slowly and chewed their food carefully.

Grandpa Jenkins carved wood and made violins. He also made a pool billiard table. This became the dinner table at large family gatherings and was remembered by Daryl Jenkins, his grandson.

Re: Emma Lydia Jenkins (first wife)

Nancy Stevens states that Emma had a sister in England who was Emma Lydia and the mother's name was Emma as well. They used to write to "Aunt Emma" in England. (see notes from 1881 British Census)

It appears she went by the name of "Emma" when she came to Canada. Several of the Jenkins family in successive generations have been known by their second name.

Note Grandpa Jenkins had a boathouse below
332 Catherine Street on Lime Bay.

Paul Hadfield (Spinnales) has a photo showing a grave yard with crosses and in the background you can see "332 house" and the boathouse below and other buildings on Esquimaux Road and Mary Street.

Grant Keddie (Prov. Archives/Museum) tells me this is an Indian were moved to the grave yard above Admirals Road on the Songhees Reserve

Grandpa Jenkins and son Fred (Walter Frederick) each bought a water front lot on Shawnigan Lake (side by side lots) in 1911.

They pitched tents and went hunting and fishing. Grandpa Jenkins built a boat house but no cabin.

Fred Jenkins built a cabin in 1921. It has been added on to over the years but is still owned by Alf and Jean Jenkins today. (Alf is grandson of Charles, and son of Fred)

Grandpa Jenkins sold his lot to Bruce Hutchison who owned the adjacent lots and did much of his writing from his cabin there which he makes reference to in his writings.

The money from Grandpa Jenkins' lot was put towards keeping Grandma Sarah in a nursing home in her later years.

The Jenkins often used the train and got off at Cliffside and walked down the trail to the cabin. Humps of coal were carried for the old wood stove.

332 Catherine Street Gayrileen 1889
Charles Frederick Jenkins
Designer: possibly Charles Frederick Jenkins

That Gayrileen (or Cavrileen???) is an Italianate house is instantly apparent through the impression of vertical lines and rectangular massing that is conveyed by the narrowness of the building, the tall rectangular windows, and the full-height corner boards. Although it lacks the cornice brackets typical of most Victoria Italianate residences, the handsome ornamental columns, brackets, and balustrade details on both the front porch and the second floor balcony are excellent examples of decorative features of this style.

The Daily Colonist for January 1st, 1890 stated that the house had been built for $3,500. It was likely built by Jenkins himself, a master builder and carpenter by trade. He was born in Bristol, England, in 1854 and came to Victoria when he was 29 with his wife, Emma Lydia, and children. Emma died in 1890 at about 32, leaving seven children, the oldest 12 and the youngest just two weeks. Her funeral was under the auspices of Court Northern Light, AOF.

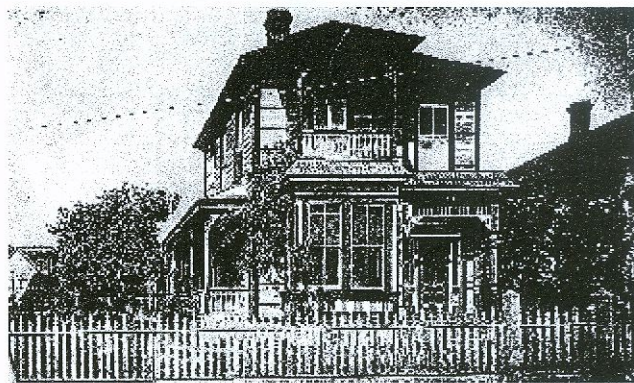

Charles worked for the Hall, Ross & Company (Victoria Rice Mills), and later as a car repairman for the E & N Railway. He retired about 1933 and died here in 1935. He was always interested in sports, and was a member of the Victoria West Athletic Association, taking up lawn bowling in his later years. He was a member of Court Northern Light, AOF, and was given a Foresters' burial service at the graveside.

In 1896, Charles married his second wife, 34-year-old Sarah Acton. She was born in Manchester, England and came to Canada in 1892. She lived in the house until about 1940, and died in Victoria in 1947 at the age of 85.

502 Catherine Street

Dr. Lewis & Sophie(a) (Cummings) Hall

This two-storey house is similar to Cavrileen, two blocks south at 322 Catherine Street. Both buildings are recognizable as Italianate not so much through their decorative details as by the impression they give of vertical rectangularity. This house has the triangular pediment and two of the ornate cornice brackets often found on Victoria Italianate residences; the latter may be more recent additions, as they are on top of the unfortunate asbestos siding that covers most of the original wood siding. A very attractive feature is the staircase leading up to an entry porch that wraps around the right side of the house and that is topped by a second-storey balcony, all decorated with elaborate brackets and spindles. A principal attraction of this type of house for the prospective nineteenth-century homeowner was that it would fit on a narrow city lot; ironically, this residence is sited on a fieldstone foundation on a commanding hillside corner lot.

On October 5, 1892, the Daily Colonist lists a tender call for a two-storey frame house for Lewis Hall at the corner of Catherine and Frederick (now Dundas) streets. The DC of January 3, 1893, says Hall's house cost $2,500.

Dr. Lewis Hall was a prominent Victoria dentist. Born in Uttoxeter, Staffordshire, England, in 1860, he came to Ottawa with his parents, Lewis and Elizabeth Hall, in 1862 and to B.C. in 1876. After trying his hand at farming and lumbering, he studied dentistry in Philadelphia, practiced a few months in Oakville, Ontario, and opened his office in Victoria in 1888. He made a specialty of porcelain work.

Lewis was on the school board from 1896-1904, a Victoria City alderman in 1906-1907, and Mayor in 1908-1909. He was influential in the adoption of wood paving blocks for downtown streets, and signed the first contract for the new ornamental cluster lights in 1909. Lewis was also a member of the Masons, Oddfellows, Foresters and Templars, an ardent fisherman and hunter, and was president of the Liberal Association for several years. The Halls were still living in this house when Lewis died in 1933, after two years of illness; he was given a Masonic burial. As reported in the Victoria Daily Times: "Throughout the day, the flag was flown at half-mast over the City Hall, where the deceased formerly held office as mayor, alderman and school trustee."

Lewis and Sophie were married in 1889. Born in 1862 in Ontario, Sophie was an accomplished musician and organist for the First Presbyterian Church, although the 1901 Canada Census lists the family as Methodist. Sophia Hall, as she was listed on her death certificate and on her tombstone in Ross Bay Cemetery, died in 1940 at 75. She was still living in 502 Catherine. There were no offspring.

As was the tradition for caring for the elderly at that time, Sophie's mother, Sophie Cummings, lived with the Halls until her death in 1913. The 1901 census also shows that Lewis and Sophie had a live-in servant, Maud Bittancourt, who was 23, born in Nova Scotia, a Methodist, and married in 1898 to John A. Bittancourt. John was not listed as living in Victoria in 1901.

The house was converted to a duplex in 1951.

The whole of the fascinating history of Victoria—and of much of British Columbia—is made to live by the Greater Victoria natives who are registered as 1971 Centennial Pioneers

Pioneers Make History Live

To be recognized as such a pioneer—a rare honor—one must have been in Canada prior to Jan. 1, 1897, or one who reaches the 75th birthday any time next year, even until New Year's Eve, and be a British Columbia resident at time of registration.

Centennial officials are astonished at the number of Greater Victoria natives. It is always said that native Victorians are scarce as you-know-what. Indeed, they are not; birthrate here in the 1890s was very high.

One wishes that the names of ALL Centennial Pioneers could be published in this series of articles. That is impossible, there are so many, and so we must be narrowminded, if you will, and restrict the names in this series to only those born in the Greater Victoria area. There are thousands more, from every province in Canada, the United States, Great Britain, Australia, China and Japan and many countries in Europe.

Truly, Victoria's and British Columbia's background was cosmopolitan.

And now here we go again to the natives of the Greater Victoria area:

Albert William Bendrodt, 925 Esquimalt, son of Capt. and Mrs. James Peter Bendrodt, and grandson of Capt. C. Swanson, one-time master of the famous Beaver, and first pilot commissioner for British Columbia; John Thomas Bennett, 1763 Emerson, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Thomas Bennett.

Mrs. Earl Stewart Brenen, 727 Selkirk, Catherine Dunn, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Bruce Todd—"father arrived here from Scotland in 1887—worked on different boats—Teas, Thistle, Maud, and was steward on City of Nanaimo"; Mrs. Colin Lorne Campbell, 1716 Fort, Rachel Valentine, sister, Mrs. Laurence Paschal Macrae, daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Francis Sylvester.

John Charles Curtis, 1308 Rudlin, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Edward Curtis; Mrs. Francis John Drake, 1650 Fort, Alice Lollie, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Neal, and granddaughter of Caleb Pike who arrived here in the Norman Morison, in 1850, and granddaughter of Mary Lidgate who came out in 1850 with her parents.

Gordon Ferguson, 9 Hiberson, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Henry Ferguson; Mrs. Jessie Bell Hamilton, 1438 Vining, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Malcolm Dunnett—"my parents were pioneer residents of the Gordon Head district."

Mrs. Frederic Tyrell Godman, 313 Plaskett, Josephine Eleanor, daughter of Rev. and Mrs. W. G. H. Ellison, he an early-day chaplain of St. Paul's Church in Esquimalt, who wrote "Settlers on Vancouver Island." Mrs. Godman was married at St. Paul's, is a veteran of two world wars, giving service to Canadian armed personnel in London. She is friend of native Indians, working hard in their behalf, and has helped greatly in the preservation of our history.

George Edward Hartnell, 1010 Gillespie, and his sister, Miss Genevieve Hartnell, 1122 Yates, son and daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry John Hartnell; Mrs. Thomas Fred Huxzey, 1930 Lullie, Nellie Agnes, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Jeeves—"my father was a contractor who, with his partner, Mr. McGregor, built many of the older buildings in Victoria—around 1890—among them the Orphanage, the Victoria Market, Jewell Block, Adelphi Block, the Bank of British North America, and, lastly, the Parliament Buildings."

Mrs. Harry James, 480 Swinford, Beatrice, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Henry Ferguson; Walter Frederick Jenkins, 1159 Old Esquimalt, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Frederick Jenkins—"my father was a joiner with the E. and N.—I apprenticed with the B.C. Foundry and Engine Works in 1907—in due course this firm was taken over by Yarrow's—I worked in the same location for 50 years."

Herbert Heffler Jeune, 4251 Cedar Hill, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick John Jeune—"my father made the first balloon and parachute west of Chicago. He started a business in Victoria, making sails for the sealing schooners."

Mrs. Francis Lynn, 345 Berwick, Eva, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Davison; Mrs. Alex MacDougall, 1060 Pakington, Edna, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Howke; Mrs. Lawrence Hodge McLaren, 1701 Cedar Hill, Sadie Emeline, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Cherry; Mrs. Eric Jack Mann, 941 Fairfield, Ingeborg Madeline, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Peter Bugslag.

James Ernest Matthews, 925 St. Charles, son of Mr. and George Franks Matthews, the latter a daughter of Col. Richard Wolfenden, Queen's Printer and army officer of note; Charles Robertson Nalrno, 642 Battery, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Robert Nalrno; Walter Cecil Norman, 2247 Foul Bay, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Norman; Mrs. Frederick John Norris, 999 Burdett, Lillie Olive, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Theophilus Elford—as a little girl she survived the Point Ellice bridge disaster.

Mrs. William John Quick, 4512 Wilkinson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Rutherford Carmichael—generations have skated on Quick's Pond at Royal Oak; Sidney Roberts, 3925 Hobbs, son of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Roberts—Roberts Bay at Sidney named after this family. Mrs. Quick's grandparents came out on the Princess Royal in 1853 and settled in Nanaimo.

William Rowland, Yates Hotel, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph William Rowland; William Ernest Simpson, 3861 Quadra, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Simpson.

Mrs. Oliver Stout, 1241 Mackenzie, Dorcas Ida, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Gawley; Mrs. Howard Taylor, 627 Superior, Marjorie Kathleen, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Fleming—"my father was a commercial photographer, with his brother, Harold—their place of business was on Government, near Fort, over Somer's framing establishment—my parents were married in Victoria in April of 1870, and lived for many years in the big house which is still on Fleming's Beach, at the foot of Lampson, in Esquimalt—my mother's father, John Joseph Robinson, was a boat-builder, and had his building and wharf on or next to where the Net Loft is today."

Mrs. Henry Thompson, 4009 Gordon Head, Ethel May, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert

Hand; Albert George Wagg, 2815 Grosvenor, son of Mr. and Mrs. Albert George Wagg; Charles Henry Webb, 3891 Carrie, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph William Webb.

Mrs. Thomas Henry Edwin Jones, 1044 Pendergast, Marguerite Amy, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Frederick Gardiner, granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Pauline, niece of F. A. Pauline, Member of the Legislature for Saanich, Mr. Speaker of the House, and agent-general for British Columbia in London.

Mrs. George Smith, 3690 Richmond, Minnie Marian, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Thomas Holness—"at the age of 13 or 14 I went to work at The Colonist as press feeder. In 1897 I went to work at the government printing office, where I stayed until 1904 when I married George Smith. We were married 14 years, when my husband passed away. He was a well-known baseball umpire, and worked for Goodacre Meats and Royal Dairy—after my husband's death I went back to work at the Government Printing Office, and became forelady in the bookbinding department, which post I held until my retirement in 1934."

You will note in this list many husband-and-wife teams, both born in Victoria.

Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Alfred Waterson, 110 Douglas, she Kate, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Abbott, and he the son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry G. Waterson.
